

Lava Rock Use and Care Instructions

(AFG-INST-015_REV_02/18)

Medium Lava Rock Shown Above

American Fire Glass™ Lava Rocks will instantly give any old fireplace an exotic, yet classy look.

Naturally occurring, these Lava Rocks are formed as volcanic magma rises to the surface, cools and releases gases which gives these rocks their coarse surface. Because they are volcanic, they can withstand extremely high temperatures without sustaining any damage or crumbling.

Our Lava Rocks may be used exclusively in a fireplace or fire pit or may be used as a base or filler for other ornaments such as fire glass or lite stones. Whichever way they are used, the resulting effect is truly fascinating. The best part is that they require no maintenance at all! Available in various sizes.

The extra-large and large lava rocks should be used only with a base of ¼" lava rock.

CAUTION: 'Lava Rocks' are designed to be used as a media base or by themselves. For optimal results, our recommendation is to pour a minimum of 2-inches over your burner, which allows the gas to filter evenly through the media - creating a beautiful flame.
